The personal impact (financially and in other ways) if HMRC enforce the Loan Charge as laid down in the legislation

I can afford the repayments though I would prefer not to. I object to the feeling that I had no choice but sign away my rights in order to settle. The whole process feels like HMRC are a rogue organisation persecuting those they can rather than doing what they should have, when they should have. Retrospective taxation is wrong. I have lost faith in the UK and hope to be in a position where my taxes are paid in Italy. I have no objection to paying taxes but feel what was once a respected country is now seen as run by profiteers, appointing their (rich) friends to the House of Lords. Those who ran the schemes have not been chased, they should have paid the taxes. A qualified accountant managed my contact with the scheme, if anyone had suggested the scheme was in any way doing anything wrong I would not have got involved. I continue as a member of LCAG to support the poor people who are being chased for life changing, unpayable sums, and in memory of those who have taken their own lives as a result of other's immorality.
